All Packed Up & Nowhere to Go!

The Society's Archive and Research Centre at the Carlisle Pier in Dún Laoghaire is now closed with all the collections packed and ready to move to storage.

The Society is complying with a ‘Notice to Quit’ issued by the Dún Laoghaire Harbour Company. It is the intention of the Harbour Company to have the premises available for commercial letting.

County Councillors, Teachtaí Dála (MPs), Senators and indeed, government ministers have supported the call for a new premises to be found for this unique facility. Talks with the Dún Laoghaire Rathdown County Council have, thus far, failed to identify a suitable building from amongst a number of unused Council owned buildings. Public concern, anger and disbelief, have all been vented on Facebook and Twitter with many citing the vacant Old Carnegie Library or space in the dlr Lexicon as possibilities. Attempts to effectively commercialise the space at the Old Carnegie Library were unanimously blocked by County Councillors in Dún Laoghaire who insisted that the building must be for public and community use. The search continues for a suitable building for this heritage and educational facility.

The Country House and the Great War

'The Country House and the Great War—Irish and British Experiences' (ISBN 978-1-84682-617-7 : 208pp : B+W ills. : P/bk : Web Price €22.45) Terence Dooley and Christopher Ridgeway, Editors and published by Four Courts Press explores the little known world behind the gates of the "Big House". In Ireland our social narrative on the "Big House" is variously depicted in terms of agrarian struggles, landlordism, rack-rents, evictions, cruelty, excessive privilege and, of course, local employment.

Terence Dooley and Christopher Ridgeway in their introduction to this excellent collection of essays note that the publication of this book in the decade of centenaries is both timely and significant as there is a renewed interest in the country houses and the families that occupied them during World War I and, of course, in Ireland during and after the revolutionary period.

The essays are as follows: Fergal Browne (ind), 'The Death of the Pallestown heir: Lt. Robert Heard, Irish Guards'; Edward Bujack (Harlaxton College), 'Air Power and the country house elite'; Philip Bull (La Trobe U, Melbourne), 'Behind the front in France: the story of the heir to Monksgrange'; Fidelma Byrne (Maynooth U), 'The impact of the Great War on the Acton and the French families'; Caroline Carr-Whitworth (English Heritage), 'Captains and cowmen: Brodsworth Hall's community during the Great War'; Ian d'Alton (TCD), 'Norman Leslie's short war'; Ronan Foley (Maynooth U), 'Augusta Bellingham and the Mount Stuart Hospital'; Dónal Hall (ind), 'The Bellingham family of Castlebellingham, Co. Louth, 1914-24'; Paul Holden (Lanhydrock, Cornwall), 'Lanhydrock: a Cornish parish torn apart'; Christopher Hunwick (Alnwick Castle), 'The Percy family and their staff in the Great War'; Brett Irwin (ind), 'Lady Londonderry and the Great War: women, work and the Western Front'; Colm McQuinn (Fingal County Council), 'The Hely-Hutchinson brothers of Seafield and the Great War'; Ida Milne (Maynooth U), 'King Elmes: a Wexford Protestant doctor dies in Messines'; David Murphy (Maynooth U), 'T.E. Lawrence, Pierce Joyce and the Great War in the Middle East'; Ciarán Reilly (Maynooth U), 'William Upton Tyrrell and the Great War'; and Dawn Webster (Kiplin Hall, North Yorkshire), 'The Talbot family at war'. Terence Dooley is director of the Centre for Historic Irish Houses and Estates, Maynooth University. Christopher Ridgeway is curator at Castle Howard in Yorkshire. Together they co-edited 'The Irish country house: its past, present and future' (2015).

January Lecture

Dr Mary Clark, Dublin City Archivist made a welcome return as our guest speaker at the Society's January open meeting.

Dublin City Council has been governed by its own elected representatives since the 12th century. Dr Clark used the opportunity to promote the considerable research resource generated over eight centuries and that is now available digitally on-line from the City Council.

The Archives contain records of the city's government from the late 12th century to the late 20th century. In addition to maps and plans that document the development of the city, these records also include City Council and committee minutes, correspondence, title deeds, correspondence, account books and a vast quantity of reports of various types.

She paid particular attention to explaining the importance, not just to Ireland but to the wider medieval Europe, of the Dublin Guild Merchant Roll dating from 1190 to 1265. The Roll consists of 43 parchments with the names of some 8,500 men and three women admitted to the merchant guild of Dublin.

It provides important detail of trading links not just within these islands but with Scandinavia, Spain, Italy and what is modern Germany.

Also included is detail of member's occupations and place names. O'Brien was the most common surname.

The database, which has a search facility, was developed in cooperation with Trinity College Dublin (TCD) and involved digital imagery, scanning and digital photography.

She also briefly outlined other Dublin City databases. These include some cemetery records, electoral rolls, plaques and memorials and Dublin City Fire Brigade's log book.

Because of data protection issues, electoral rolls unfortunately have had to be removed from the City Council's website but are available to consult manually in the city libraries.

Further information is available at www.databases.dublincity.ie

To avail of any of these Member discounts, please contact Barry O'Connor, FGSI, by email at membership@familyhistory.ie

IDEAL GIFT IDEAS

Genealogists and local historians are relatively easy souls to please when it comes to gifts—books! So if you have a birthday gift to buy—think books by our Members. Much of the research for these books was undertaken at the Society's Archive & Research Centre—An Daonchartlann.

'Victorian Dún Laoghaire' by Tom Conlon—excellent local history of the town and the first to deal extensively with the poor and "the courts" where they lived. Price: €20.00

'Labour in Kingstown, 1890-1920' by Charlie Callan—explores a much neglected subject—the working class of Kingstown (now Dún Laoghaire and the development of organised labour and its political representation. Price: €10.00 (published privately contact: chascallan@gmail.com)

'Twice Built—The Construction of St. Patrick's Church, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, 1861-66' by Tom Conlon. An intriguing story of "church politics" surrounding the building of a parish church in Dublin. Price €12.00

TRACING YOUR IRISH ANCESTORS

by John Grenham, MA, MAPGI, FIGRS, FGSI

The Society strongly recommends to anyone embarking on their family history quest that one essential piece of kit must be, without doubt, a copy of the latest edition of 'Tracing Your Irish Ancestors'. Please checkout the website www.gillmacmillan.com Price €22.99 [RRP].

Local History Journal Review

Local History Journals are always a very useful resource for genealogists, however, the importance of these journals in providing invaluable insights into the social history of an area is frequently overlooked by genealogists and others.

'Dun Laoghaire Journal No.26 – 2017' is published by the Dún Laoghaire Borough Historical Society ISSN 0791-3680 and priced at €6.00

Variety of content covering a diverse range of subjects is the feature of this year's journal in which - Brendan McGovern in 'Bellevue Park' provides a brief history of this former house built in the 1830s and some of its residents, better known today as Cluny Convent.

Those who served as TDs for Dún Laoghaire since 1947 when the seven seat of Dublin South was abolished and replaced by the initial three seat of Dun Laoghaire Rathdown which over time has been reconfigured as four and five seat constituency, are recalled by Brian Smith in 'The Election of TDs for Dún Laoghaire'.

Anna Scudds contributes a brief history of 'Beeches Lawn Tennis Club, Glenageary'; Séamas Cannon looks at 'Some Local Placenames and Street Signs'; Rosaleen Hicks highlights 'Hicks of Dún Laoghaire – Celebrating 90 years in business', while James Scannell continues his long running article 'Dún Laoghaire – Prelude to the Emergency'.

The important role that The Gas Company Theatre contributed to the cultural life of the town and acted as a training ground for numerous performers who went to achieve greater things is heightened by Mary Grogan in 'The Gas Company Theatre, Dún Laoghaire'.

Cormac F. Lowth provides a fascinating biography of his great great grandfather in 'Inspector Thomas Lowth, D.M.P.' which includes a selection of the cases he was involved in. Another family article is provided by Marilyn Walsh in 'Walking with my Aunt' based on a family photograph taken by a Dún Laoghaire seafaring street photographer in the 1960s.

Colin Scudds in 'Dún Laoghaire's Iron Age' looks at the various type of ornamental metal work that can be found throughout the town which enhances the appearance of the town and embellishes the streetscape.

All in all, the publication committee of Mona O'Donnell, Séamus O'Connor, Anna and Colin Scudds, have managed to produce another excellent issue of this journal which records various aspects of the town's past, copies of which can be obtained from local booksellers, or from the Society at its month meetings in the Royal Marine Hotel, or via their web-site www.dunlaoghairehistorical.com. Back issues of journals 15 to 25 also available. James Scannell

SHIPS, MARINERS, PASSENGERS AND EMIGRANTS

With much talk of emigrants and emigration on both sides of the Atlantic these days, it's worth remembering that emigration and migration is part of the human story from the beginning. For anybody seeking photographs of the vessels and in particular, those crossing the North Atlantic from Europe to the United States and Canada carrying emigrants and general passengers, checkout: 'Ships of our Ancestors' by Michael J. Anuta and published by the Genealogical Publishing Co. Inc, ISBN 978-08063-1381-1. Another set of records that may also be of interest are the 'Records of the Registrar General of Shipping and Seamen, 1860-1921'. This database from the National Archives of Ireland provides a wealth of information on shipping activities and the people who sailed in them. It provides crew lists, and agreements with seamen regarding wage rates, conditions of service and related information, of ships registered in what is now the Republic of Ireland between 1860 and 1921. These records came to the National Archives of Ireland in 1971 and 1978 from the Board of Trade in the United Kingdom. See: <http://census.nationalarchives.ie/search/cl/home.jsp>

GSI Outreach Programme

The Society's Director of the Outreach Programme, Eddie Gahan, took the Society northward again this month for 'The Belfast Telegraph Holiday World Show' at the Titanic Centre which was held on January 20th, 21st and 22nd, 2017.

The Society's stand at this event was extremely popular with the thousands of visitors to the show. Eddie would like to sincerely thank all the volunteers who travelled up to Belfast to help out on the stand. It was a great success.

Over the coming months, although, the Archive and Research Centre is closed and the collections and shared online resources currently inaccessible, Eddie and his very dedicated team will continue to roll-out an ever-expanding Outreach Programme.

Local History Societies, Ladies' Clubs, Active Retirement Clubs and others are constantly seeking the Society's presence at events or to give talks on genealogy and related subjects. The Society considers its Outreach Programme as an essential free service to the public.

If you would like to help out with the Outreach Programme contact Eddie on eddie\_gahan\_snr@hotmail.com

IRISH DNA ATLAS

The Irish DNA Atlas is collaborative academic project undertaken by Prof. Gianpietro Cavalleri and Edmund Gilbert, PhD student, of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and Séamus O'Reilly, Michael Merrigan, Dr. Darren McGettigan from the Genealogical Society of Ireland. The main objectives of the project are 1) to further our understanding of the population history of Ireland, and 2) to help us understand how genes influence disease within Ireland. ### INDEX TO 11 VOLUMES

The "Gazette" is Ireland's longest running monthly genealogical newsletter and it is read by thousands each month around the world. All the past issues of this newsletter and its predecessor back to 1996 have been fully indexed by Brendan Hall, MGSi and they are available in pdf format to read or to download free of charge on www.familyhistory.ie Although we're not members of the National Union of Journalists (NUJ), the team at the "Gazette" always endeavour to operate in accordance with the NUJ Code of Conduct www.nuj.org.uk/about/nuj-code/ and in line with the 'National Policy Statement on Ensuring Research Integrity in Ireland' which was endorsed by the Genealogical Society of Ireland back in June 2014 soon after its launch at the Royal Irish Academy. (see the June 2014 issue at www.familyhistory.ie)

FREE RESEARCH ADVICE

An Daonchartlann, the Society's Archive and Research Centre in Dún Laoghaire is now closed. The Society is currently looking for a new home for its collections and its research facilities.

Up to the time of closure, the use of our extensive archival resources was reserved for fully paid-up GSI members, however, day research membership was available for €5.00.

Resources freely available to Members include a number of excellent pay-for-view websites including Ancestry.com, Findmypast, Forces War Records, Newspapers.com, British Newspaper Archives and Irish Newspaper Archives.

The Board of the Society sought space in the dlr Lexicon in order to provide the above services on Wednesdays and Saturdays, however, the County Librarian for Dún Laoghaire Rathdown was not in a position to provide any space to the Society.

The Board of the Society will continue to search for an alternative venue to provide this very popular and much needed service to Members and the public in Dún Laoghaire, if available space can be found, or in the City of Dublin. Please check the Society's website for updates—www.familyhistory.ie
